

Renaissance Dances: La Volta (16th century)

Abstract

In this video presented by the Historical Dance Society, students of Trinity Laban Conservatoire of Music and Dance (London) perform the Volta, a dance for couples that was popular in Renaissance Europe.

Source

Source: Historical Dance Society. Performed by students of Trinity Laban Conservatoire of Music and Dance, London.

Historical Dance Society

Recommended Citation: Renaissance Dances: La Volta (16th century), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <<https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/from-the-reformations-to-the-thirty-years-war-1500-1648/ghdi:video-5152>> [April 03, 2025].