

View of Augsburg (1493)

Abstract

---

The quintessential German Renaissance city and one of Germany's oldest, Augsburg was a rival to Nuremberg, just 75 miles to the north. During the sixteenth century, Augsburg hosted many Imperial Diets and surpassed Nuremberg as the largest German-speaking city and financial hub of the Empire.

Source

---

Source: Augusta (Augsburg), woodcut by Michael Wolgemut, Liber Chronicarum, 1493, Folio XCII, Drew University copy, cropped, Internet Archive, ark:/13960/t6b39g779.

Recommended Citation: View of Augsburg (1493), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <<https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/from-the-reformations-to-the-thirty-years-war-1500-1648/ghdi:image-3277>> [April 03, 2025].