

Eastern Front: German Tank Stuck in the Snow (December 1941)

Abstract

Prior to the invasion of the Soviet Union, Hitler's army had won a number of quick military victories. The campaign in the East, however, was a disaster for the Wehrmacht and proved to be a turning point in the war. Strategic mistakes, inadequate supplies for troops, and insufficient equipment all contributed to the German defeat on the Eastern Front. In many areas, German military equipment was not suited to the Soviet Union's climate and ground conditions, especially in the winter months. This image shows a German type IV tank (in snow camouflage) stuck in the snow. While soldiers attempt to free the tank with shovels and pickaxes, a war correspondent (far right) captures photographs the scene.

Source

Bundesarchiv, Bild 101-215-0354-14
Foto: Gebauer | 1941 Ende

Source: © Bundesarchiv

Recommended Citation: Eastern Front: German Tank Stuck in the Snow (December 1941), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/nazi-germany-1933-1945/ghdi:image-3147> [May 17, 2024].