

German Women and American Soldiers on a Rollercoaster (1945)

Abstract

An American order forbidding fraternization between U.S. soldiers and German civilians was issued in September 1944, right after American troops landed on German soil. The prohibition was motivated by concern for soldiers' safety and a desire to ostracize Germans and thus teach them a lesson. Additionally, it sought to placate members of the American public, the majority of whom harbored anti-German sentiments and had been outraged by initial reports of fraternization between U.S. soldiers and German civilians. The ban proved impossible to enforce though and was rescinded in October 1945.

Source

Source:

Photo: Hanns Hubmann. bpk-Bildagentur, image number 30010381. For rights inquiries, please contact Art Resource at requests@artres.com (North America) or bpk-Bildagentur at kontakt@bpk-bildagentur.de (for all other countries).

© bpk / Hanns Hubmann

Recommended Citation: German Women and American Soldiers on a Rollercoaster (1945), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/occupation-and-the-emergence-of-two-states-1945-1961/ghdi:image-1073> [May 03, 2024].