

Frederick William von Steuben (c. 1790)

Abstract

---

Born in Prussian Magdeburg, Frederick William von Steuben (1730-94) joined the army and served as an officer in the Seven Years War (1756-63). After the war and his dismissal from service, Steuben was reduced to poverty and forced to seek non-military employment as a court official, a position he disliked. While in Paris in 1777, Steuben met Benjamin Franklin (1706-90), who was ambassador to France of the newly declared United States. Franklin provided Steuben with a letter of recommendation that made it possible for him to serve in the American revolutionary army under George Washington (1732-99). Drawing on his knowledge of the Prussian army, Steuben helped transform the American army into an effective force and won a number of victories against the British. In a letter dated 1779, Steuben praised the liberal ideals of the new American republic.

Source

---

Source: Colored copperplate engraving by an unknown artist, c. 1790.
bpk-Bildagentur, image number 00005897. For rights inquiries, please contact Art Resource at requests@artres.com (North America) or bpk-Bildagentur at kontakt@bpk-bildagentur.de (for all other countries).

© bpk

Recommended Citation: Frederick William von Steuben (c. 1790), published in: German History in

---

Documents and Images,

<<https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/the-holy-roman-empire-1648-1815/ghdi:image-2925>> [July 16, 2024].