

The Founding of the Confederation of the Rhine [Rheinbund] on July 12, 1806 (1806)

Abstract

After Napoleonic France, aided by the southern German states of Bavaria, Baden, and Württemberg, defeated the Austrian Empire and its allies in the War of the Third Coalition in 1805, Napoleon (r. 1804-1814/15) brought about the dissolution of the Holy Roman Empire. He did so by promoting the establishment of the Confederation of the Rhine, which comprised sixteen southern and southwestern German imperial estates. This lithograph shows the signing of the Treaty of the Confederation of the Rhine [Rheinbundakte] on July 12, 1806. The treaty was signed by the principalities and Napoleon, who assumed a protectorate over this new political body. The participating princes renounced their association with the Holy Roman Emperor and declared their sovereignty. At the time, Holy Roman Emperor Francis II (r. 1792-1806) was already under growing pressure by Napoleon, and this, together with the founding of the Confederation, forced him to abdicate the throne and proclaim the dissolution of the Holy Roman Empire.

Source

Source: Lithograph by Charles E. P. Motte, 1806.

bpk-Bildagentur, image number 30028189. For rights inquiries, please contact Art Resource at requests@artres.com (North America) or bpk-Bildagentur at kontakt@bpk-bildagentur.de (for all other countries).

Recommended Citation: The Founding of the Confederation of the Rhine [Rheinbund] on July 12, 1806 (1806), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <<https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/the-holy-roman-empire-1648-1815/ghdi:image-2906>> [July 16, 2024].