

Blockade of the Springer Publishing House in Hamburg (1968)

Abstract

Many observers blamed the Springer publishing house for the assassination attempt on student activist Rudi Dutschke, since its publications had fomented a blaze of hatred against the student movements and its leaders. To denounce the domination of the media by conservative forces, demonstrators tried to prevent the delivery of Springer newspapers, including the popular tabloid BILD-Zeitung. Here, police protect the Springer headquarters in Hamburg during the so-called Springer Blockade.

Source

Source: Police protecting the Axel Springer publishing house during the Springer blockade in Hamburg, 1968. Photo: Günter Zint.

bpk-Bildagentur, image number 30008379. For rights inquiries, please contact Art Resource at requests@artres.com (North America) or bpk-Bildagentur at kontakt@bpk-bildagentur.de (for all other countries).

© bpk / Günter Zint

Recommended Citation: Blockade of the Springer Publishing House in Hamburg (1968), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/two-germanies-1961-1989/ghdi:image-117> [April 25, 2024].