

Hanns Martin Schleyer and Walter Arendt (1971)

Abstract

In the middle of the 1960s, after the “Economic Miracle” [Wirtschaftswunder] had subsided, signs of a serious economic crisis began to appear in West Germany. To combat this crisis, key players in politics, business, and workers’ organizations came together to devise a plan of “concerted action,” i.e, joint measures to strengthen the economy. A “concerted action” meeting on July 4, 1971, provided the occasion for a conversation between Hanns Martin Schleyer (center), then chairman of the Employers’ Associations of Baden-Württemberg, and Federal Minister of Labor Walter Arendt (left).

Source

Source: Hanns Martin Schleyer (center) talking with Walter Arendt (left) during a meeting occasioned by the “concerted action.” June 4, 1971. Photo: Kurt Rohwedder.

bpk-Bildagentur, image number 30008362. For rights inquiries, please contact Art Resource at requests@artres.com (North America) or bpk-Bildagentur at kontakt@bpk-bildagentur.de (for all other countries).

© bpk / Kurt Rohwedder

Recommended Citation: Hanns Martin Schleyer and Walter Arendt (1971), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <<https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/two-germanies-1961-1989/ghdi:image-142>> [May 08, 2024].