

Ten Commandments for the New Socialist Person (1963)

Abstract

Walter Ulbricht proclaimed the “Ten Commandments of Socialist Morality” at the V. Party Congress of the SED in July 1958. These commandments were supposed to embody the principles of socialist ethics and morality and guide the behavior of every GDR citizen. They were later incorporated into the SED party platform. In the photograph below, taken in 1963, a framed copy of the “Ten Commandments for the New Socialist Person” can be seen in the stairwell of a school in the Agricultural Production Cooperative Schenkenberg (Brandenburg). The banner underneath the poster announces: “We love our Republic. With Walter Ulbricht for Germany’s happiness.”

Source

Source: “10 Commandments for the New Socialist Person” and a declaration of love for the Republic in the staircase of a school. Date: 1963. Location: Schenkenberg near Leipzig. Photo: Abisag Tüllmann. bpk-Bildagentur, image number 30008414. For rights inquiries, please contact Art Resource at requests@artres.com (North America) or bpk-Bildagentur at kontakt@bpk-bildagentur.de (for all other countries).

© bpk/ Abisag Tüllmann

Recommended Citation: Ten Commandments for the New Socialist Person (1963), published in: German History in Documents and Images, <https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/two-germanies-1961-1989/ghdi:image-1113> [April 26, 2024].