

Replacement of the Stone Wall with Concrete (July 1963)

Abstract

Starting in 1963, portions of the original stone wall were replaced with concrete. This photograph shows work being done at Bernauer Strasse (intersection: Swinemünder Straße). The two signs on the right are still within the Western sector—but just barely. One warns: “End of the French sector”; the other issues the following condemnation: “Roadblock caused by the Wall of Shame.” Photo by Klaus Lehnartz.
