

National Socialist German Workers' Party (NSDAP) Election Poster (1928)

Abstract

---

After the ban on the NSDAP was lifted, the party reestablished itself in 1925. Its new tactic was to bring about the political revolution it sought through legal means such as elections. In its depiction of the “German farmer” whose political demands consist of no more than “work, freedom, and bread,” this 1928 election poster differs little from those of other nationalist parties such as the DNVP, for example. Since the economic and political situation in Germany stabilized during the second half of the 1920s, the NSDAP was unable to win a significant amount of votes in 1928.

Source

---

Source: National Socialist German Workers' Party (NSDAP) Election Poster, 1928.

bpk-Bildagentur, image number 00004286. For rights inquiries, please contact Art Resource at requests@artres.com (North America) or bpk-Bildagentur at kontakt@bpk-bildagentur.de (for all other countries).

Bildarchiv Preußischer Kulturbesitz

Recommended Citation: National Socialist German Workers' Party (NSDAP) Election Poster (1928), published in: German History in Documents and Images,

---

<<https://germanhistorydocs.org/en/weimar-germany-1918-1933/ghdi:image-4075>> [March 16, 2026].